

Click this to go back to the free articles and media page.

Why do Muslims think the Bible has been corrupted?

I have had thousands of face to face gospel conversations with Muslims. During a majority of them, I hear them tell me that the Bible is corrupt. Logically, if the Bible is corrupt, its entire message is called into question. They think to themselves, “Why should I believe anything this guy is telling me since his book is corrupt?” The gospel holds everyone accountable to obey it. But Satan uses their false view of it to turn their attention away from the gospel and thus, keep them blind to it so that they might perish.

Why do Muslim’s think the Bible has been corrupted? Most of them have no real knowledge of the subject. They simply listen to what their leaders teach them. They are taught by their leaders that the Bible has been corrupted. Most of them accept that narrative and feel justified in their belief that Islam is the true religion. Rarely, a Muslim will go online and watch videos to learn more about this. But typically, they will watch videos made by Muslims that only further cement their view that the Bible is corrupt. It is understandable how this could happen.

But what would happen if a Muslim wanted to find out more about this by watching videos produced by Christians? Would such a Muslim find out anything that might persuade him that the Bible has not been corrupted? I suggest that his opinion that the Bible has been corrupted would likely be strengthened by watching most of the videos on this subject produced by Christians. I say this because most Christian seminaries have bought into the narrative of the textual criticism industry. Many in this camp insist they believe in the doctrine of inspiration and even claim that God has preserved His Word. Yet, their own words betray them as they attempt to debate with each other about certain passages in the New Testament. If the inclusion of a passage is up for scholarly debate, its inclusion cannot be known for certain. (Otherwise, it would not be debated.)

All you have to do to confirm what I am saying is to look at the notes in the margin of your Bible. But if you prefer to watch videos, click on this link to watch James White, a well known “Christian” apologist explain how three New Testament passages are actually not a part of the original New Testament. In the first 3 minutes of this video, James White is being interviewed by a Muslim. I believe James White makes a very convincing argument that will only strengthen the Muslim narrative that the Bible is corrupt. No wonder Muslims believe the Bible is corrupt!

Note: James White suggested that his reason to exclude Mark 16:9-20 is based upon manuscript evidence. This is completely bogus because only 2 or 3 manuscripts of Mark exclude these verses while 1700 or them include the verses. James White, please don’t come to Dearborn. My job is difficult enough as it is.

To read a recent article by Tom Bear explaining the faulty premise of the textual criticism industry, click “Do you believe God, or not?”